FROM THE REVD PAUL CAWTHORNE

What are you giving up for Lent?

This feels a rather different question to ask in our present 'age of austerity' than in previous times of excess. At the risk of coming across as a po-faced Puritan, it is worth exploring a bit about how all this works in our modern society and our lives.

When one has been enjoying the cream of the land, a period of dieting can seem worthwhile and even righteous. The discipline of moderation can easily be understood and its underlying spiritual benefits appreciated. Forgetting the need to rein in one's appetites can lead to big problems. Recent official health initiatives about obesity have focussed minds on the dangers of eating junk food for too long. I wonder whether there is a rough parallel with the "irrational exuberance" which Alan Greenspan diagnosed during the dotcom bubble of the 1990s before the wider financial crash. One could say the banks ate too much junk food in their lending and investment, grew bloated and didn't realise until too late how little nutrition some of it contained.

One can recall too the breezily entitled 'pension holidays' some organisations took, which really meant inflating profits by not putting enough money aside into employees' schemes in anticipation of the lean years. How much has changed now with prominent organisations burdened with pension scheme deficits and having to formulate painful long-term plans to get back on a level again. It is complex stuff which is clearly spiritual, about fall and restoration, as is explored in the Archbishop of Canterbury's Lent book for this year, Dethroning Mammon: making money serve grace.

Looking back before we look forward, it has been interesting to see how Alcohol Concern's Dry January campaign has caught on. For some it is a way of coming down from the party-fuelled excesses of the build-up to Christmas and the season itself. Of course one could say that with more moderation and spiritual focus on the meaning of Christmas the excess would not occur, so such an antidote would not be needed. Perhaps that is too idealistic. The traditional spiritual wisdom was to do things the other way round and put the period of restraint before rather than after. Advent used to be a period of waiting and preparation before enjoying Christmas to the full, but that has sadly been rather overtaken by our impatience in recent years.

So moving on to Lent, what can we do and why should we? Giving up chocolate or biscuits or coffee for Lent can be a neat little way to symbolise in our own lives preparing our hearts for Easter. The traditional approach over centuries has been observing Lent as a period of fasting and penitence for our sins, the failings from which Jesus lovingly died to set us free and give us hope of a way out. It prepares us to walk with Jesus through suffering to his victory over the forces of destruction and helps get us ready to celebrate the wonderful redeeming mystery of his resurrection.

A church congregation I know decided that giving up most meetings for Lent was the best way to prepare for Easter! For that busy congregation, it had real benefits in creating fresh space they hadn't thought was there. In the Dorchester team this Lent, at the Abbey on Sunday evenings from 6pm and in parish gatherings during the week we will be thinking about ways of caring for creation and all are welcome to come along. Many Christian organisations have tried to give assistance with very practical ways of walking with Jesus. There is a helpful little booklet which gives practical suggestions for how people young and old in the wide family of the church can get into the spirit of Lent called 'Love Life, Live Lent: transform your world'. It is downloadable at

<https://books.google.co.uk/books?isbn=0715141821>

There are lively down-to-earth suggestions about giving things up and taking things on; being generous; making more time for quiet; being greener; helping those who are suffering; preparing for new life.

So this Lent, how will you join in the spiritual fellowship of this special season?

STRUGGLING WITH DEBTS? CITIZENS ADVICE CAN HELP

More people saddled with unmanageable debts are turning to Citizens Advice, leading the charity to call for people to seek help before they reach crisis point. Nationally, a rising number of people have resorted to a debt relief order (DRO) since the amount of debt covered by a DRO rose from £15,000 to £20,000 last October.

DROs are a last resort for people who have exhausted all options for repaying their debts and won't be able to pay in the near future. They work by "pausing" most of your debts for a year so that your creditors can't chase you for repayment. At the end of the year, unless your circumstances change, your debts will be written off.

Debt write-offs can have a serious impact on people's credit rating, which makes it more difficult to take out more credit agreements or even open a new bank account. Citizens Advice is now urging people who are failing to keep on top of their debts to seek advice early, so that they have the best chance of managing their debts and avoiding debt write-offs. An adviser stressed: "We will discuss your individual situation and look at the options available to you, so that you can make an informed decision about the best kind of debt management for you."

BALDONS PARISH COUNCIL NEWS

The next Baldons PC meeting will be held on Monday March 13th, 2017 to be followed by the Annual Joint Parishes meeting on Monday April 10th and the Annual General Meeting on Monday May 8th. All meetings to be held at 7.30pm in the Marsh Baldons Village Hall.

We hope that you will be able to come along as these meetings are YOUR opportunity to ask questions and raise issues with the Parish Council and to discuss important local issues.

South Oxford Science Village / Grenoble Road

Planning consultants acting on behalf of Magdalen College, Thames Water and Oxford City Council held three public consultation events in Oxford in January to promote development at Grenoble Road and to extend the South Oxford Science Village. The proposal, on Green Belt land, would include 3,000+ new homes, various infrastructure improvements, an expansion of the Science Park, a school, up to 8 sports pitches, a new community centre, new shops next to the Kassam Stadium and a new roundabout on the A4074.

It is clear that there is a strong body of opposition. South Oxfordshire District Council (SODC) have already stated that their preferred option is to support the Homes & Communities Agency (HCA) proposal to build 3,500-4,000 residential units at the Chalgrove Airfield site. Cllr. Lorraine Lindsay-Gale (Oxfordshire County Council) has stated her opposition to development on Green Belt land at Grenoble Road preferring to see development at Culham and Berinsfield instead. However, as Cllr. Lindsay-Gale states, "reaching decisions which are the most appropriate and sustainable locations for building more houses in South Oxfordshire and the County to meet demand is a highly complex and emotive problem".

In the next few weeks SODC will present a draft 'Preferred Options part 2' strategy for public consultation to be followed by a pre-submission consultation in the summer. SODC will then submit a final draft of the Local Plan to the Inspector at the end of 2017 to be followed by an Examination in Public (EIP) sometime in 2018.

Neighbourhood Plan

It is hoped that the Neighbourhood Plan will be published in the autumn and, in preparation for this, Baldons PC is completing a 'Landscape Character Assessment' and an 'Appraisal of Potential Building Sites'.

As part of this appraisal, letters have been sent to local landowners seeking to:-

1. identify sites suitable for the construction of up to approximately 15 houses, an increase in the overall present housing stock of 9%;
2. restrict new houses to sites within the present built up area, with no further expansion in the surrounding countryside;
3. require that new housing should comprise small houses; and

4. require that the design of new houses should conform to an enhanced Baldons design code.

Oxfordshire County Council 4.99% Council Tax increase

OCC are making a further £16m worth of cuts for 2017/18 due to ongoing financial pressures imposed by Central Government. These follow the £292m cuts made since 2010. In addition, OCC is to increase Council Tax for 2017/18 by 4.99% (the 1.99% allowed by Central Government without the requirement for a local referendum plus an additional 3% that is now allowed to be spent on Adult social care).

The additional 3% will raise £3.4m to be spent in 3 key areas over the course of 2017/18 and 2018/19:

1. £1.01m to grow, develop and build resilience in external care;
2. £1.485m to transform capacity in the public and private sector;
3. £650,000 for Daytime support (supporting independent living for the elderly and disabled).

'One Oxfordshire' - Unitary Status Update

On 6/2/17 OCC, SODC and the Vale of White Horse councils issued a joint statement stating that they have agreed to work together on a joint bid to government to create a single unitary council for Oxfordshire. The joint unitary proposal builds on the foundation laid by the draft OCC 'One Oxfordshire' proposal with significant improvements to ensure that the priorities of local communities, raised by district council partners, are fully addressed. The focus over the next few weeks will be on:

- Ensuring that decisions can be taken at a more local level than offered by the area executive board model;
- Ensuring that locally held reserves are used for the benefit of local residents while recognising the collective benefits of pooling resources to leverage investment;
- Commitment to a revised model of council tax harmonisation across the county;
- Ensuring that the planning framework builds on existing and emerging local plans;
- Establishing a housing company to ensure delivery of sustainable housing and infrastructure;
- Encouraging Oxford City Council to join the working group to draw on their knowledge and expertise of running services in the city and to develop a model of local governance that works for Oxford. It is essential that the model of local government incorporates the very different social and economic make-up of Oxford City but also embraces the vital economic importance of the City to the whole county.

Village Spring Clean

The annual Village Spring Clean will take place on Sunday March 26th, 2017. Baldons PC hopes that many villagers will come and help for an hour or so, children included, to get the village looking tidy for Easter and the spring. For the Marsh tidy, please meet on the Village Green at 10.30 am. For the Toot tidy please meet at 10am opposite the Mole. Both groups will all then join up for a refreshing drink in the pub later. Bags and litter sticks will be provided but please bring gloves and strong shoes.

Minerals & Waste Strategy (Gravel Extraction)

The Examination in Public was held for 10 days from 20/9/16 and the Inspector then issued an Interim Report instructing OCC to carry out a further strategic environmental assessment / sustainability appraisal. In accordance with this request, OCC have published the following consultation document - 'Main Modifications to the Oxfordshire Minerals and Waste Local Plan: Part 1 - Core Strategy'. The consultation runs until 20/3/17 and the document can be viewed at: oxfordshire.gov.uk/cms/content/minerals-and-waste-core-strategy

Health Services consultation

A consultation on proposed changes to health services in Oxfordshire has been launched by the Oxfordshire Clinical Commissioning Group. A full debate on the consultation will be hosted by the Oxfordshire Joint Health Overview and Scrutiny Committee on 7/3/17. HOSC is an independent joint committee that includes representatives from the four District Councils, the City Council and County Council.

FROM JOHN HOWELL MP

This month I will focus on Brexit to try to help bring some clarity. Firstly let me turn to the debate revolving around Article 50. This is something which was introduced by the Lisbon Treaty in 2009. It allows a Member State to leave the EU and sets out the procedure for this to happen. The debate in Parliament followed the judgement of the Supreme Court that the Prime Minister must seek approval of Parliament to trigger Article 50. The short Bill presented to the House was simply to enshrine in Statute the power for the Prime Minister to judge the timing of when this should occur. The Bill is currently with the House of Lords. The Lords may suggest some amendments but as it stands it is not anticipated that there will be anything new coming forward to the House of Commons when it returns. Nonetheless, whatever the outcome, this Bill will not lead to the immediate triggering of Article 50. Article 50 remains as untriggered today as it has always been. The clock will not start ticking from the day of Royal Assent and the timing would be in the hands of the Prime Minister.

The Government White Paper entitled 'The United Kingdom's exit from and new partnership with the European Union' sets out the key priorities for negotiations in a number of areas and for the first time sets out clearly some of the critical issues. It has already proved useful in the constituency as a starting point for discussion to help me get a feel for the issues that are most important or of most concern to constituents.

The terms 'hard Brexit' and 'soft Brexit' are widely bandied around and many have asked me just what they mean. Essentially they represent the extremes and following negotiation we are likely to have neither as currently defined. For now the term Hard Brexit identifies a situation in which the UK leaves the EU swiftly, not as a member of the Single Market but as a member of the World Trade Organisation. The World Trade Organisation is an international organisation with over 164 member countries. The UK is already a member of the WTO. Relying on WTO rules would lead to multiple individual negotiations. In contrast soft Brexit identifies a situation in which the UK leaves the EU but negotiates continued membership of the Single Market in some way e.g. as part of the European Economic Area, while giving up influence over single market rules. At best the idea of a hard or soft Brexit sets the ends of the spectrum but I think that the two terms suggest something simplistic and mask the true complexity of the negotiations.

A further important aspect of our withdrawal will be the 'Great Repeal Bill'. It is planned to introduce this in the next session of Parliament in May this year. It will repeal the European Communities Act 1972 which marked our entry into the EU and where practical will convert EU law into domestic law. As I understand it, it is likely that this will mop up any unfinished business and will be the means by which we avoid falling off a 'cliff edge'; that is leaving with outstanding issues to resolve; as some worry we could. However we have yet to see the details of this.

WHAT DID WALLINGFORD CASTLE LOOK LIKE?

Wallingford Castle was one of the greatest royal strongholds of Medieval England, and it ranked alongside the Tower of London and Windsor Castle in its importance in the Thames valley. When Wallingford Museum opened with its new exhibitions on 1st March there was also on display a new artistic impression of the Castle. The new illustration has been produced by Museum volunteer June Strong, whose striking drawing brings to life the amazing details discovered in newly translated documents and investigations, revealing the daily life and the layout of the Castle.

There are three new exhibitions:-

- 'Wallingford Castle - the Inside Story' presents a closer look at different parts of the Castle as revealed in the new documentary research.
- 'Pettits: past to present' exhibition gives a history of Wallingford's department store, and the family who have run it from its beginning in 1856 to the present day.
- 'Ways to Wallingford' describes how Wallingford has been an important crossing point on the Thames since the Saxon times.

'NEW LIGHT ON THE ROMANO-BRITISH COUNTRYSIDE'

March's talk to The Wallingford Historical and Archaeological Society (TWHAS) will be given by Alexander Telford Smith . He will present "New light on the Romano-British countryside: Current results of the Roman Rural Settlement Project".

With the huge mass of mainly developer-funded excavation data created over the past 25 years, the incredible diversity and density of Roman rural settlement across the landscape is now starting to be demonstrated. Dr Alex Smith is a Senior Research Fellow at Reading University, and his main area of interest is the rural settlement of Roman Britain. His talk will provide a brief overview of the current state of this research, concentrating on southern Britain, and assessing how the TWHAS excavated site at Coldharbour Farm fits in with wider patterns in the Romano-British countryside.

This talk will be held on Wednesday 8th March, 7.45 for 8 pm at St Mary's Church, Wallingford. Visitors (£4) are most welcome.
